U.S. Rep. Brad Miller Receives Henry B. Gonzalez Award from the National Community Reinvestment Coalition

Washington, D.C. – At a luncheon in Washington, Rep. Brad Miller received the Henry B. Gonzalez Award from the National Community Reinvestment Coalition. This national award is given to government officials or agencies who have built effective partnerships with community non-profits in an effort to help those who are traditionally underserved build wealth and economic opportunity. The Congressman was honored for his work on financial reform and the instrumental role he played in the inception of Americans for Financial Reform.

Throughout his time in Congress, Miller has been a strong and consistent advocate for working families in his push for stronger consumer protection laws. Miller spearheaded the effort in the House to pass a national Anti-Predatory Lending law and a Consumer Financial Protection Bureau bill that were included in the Wall Street Reform Act signed by the President. He has also written a Bankruptcy bill to try to help save family homes.
